A Book Written By: Claude Roberts

In a world where Privacy Has No Security & Security Has No Privacy

We've all heard the saying "i have nothing to hide" countless times, but how does it feel to know that our privacy has been compromised.

There is always something we do
not want others
to know whether
its a text, picture,
or our grades from school.

In 1948, privacy was considered a fundamental human right by the United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Seventy-one years later, still have nothing to hide, privacy does not matter!
